“ I thought the world of Jack growing up. Seemed like he always did lots of different things - one of my mother's go-to people when she needed help. I remember in high school (FCHS) always thinking it was so cool to be related to the sheriff's deputy keeping an eye on the crazy teenagers at the school dances. Funny the things you remember. Last time I saw him was at my grandmother's funeral (his Aunt Jene) - still crazy then too. ;-) Blessings and prayers for all of you. Cindy

“ Pop was like a dad to me. We did a lot of everyday things together, fix fence, pulled a colt, sat by the fire, watched tv, drank a couple beverages, trips. I will miss him. He had some stories and I think they were all true! He did it all. He taught me a lot too. I will forever be grateful to my mom for making him a part of our lives. He was a grandpa to my kids and my grandkids. Love ya Pop!

“ Jack was a good man and all who knew him loved him dearly. One thing he taught me that I have shared with many and continue to share to this day is never put ur child's name first or last on their t-shirts because that's one way kid's get abducted. They will call the child by name and the kid will think it is someone that knows them. RIP Jack.

“ I meet Jack when I was about 11 years old, he was a deputy sheriff for floyd county Indiana. I always thought he was so cool he drove a old v8 jeep that run like a no other. Back in those day's like my own father (Hebert Sorrels) he was man's man and most of you know what I'm talking about. I lost contact with Jack many years ago but I still have those old memories of Marg and Jack farewell old friend.
