As we reflect on the life of Stan Ostick (Stan the man) we are reminded of some of our fondest memories, many of which included poetry such as featured below: Where do we stand in God's great Universe?... Where celestial bodies turn way on a timeless, endless, merry race to this boundless orb. My mind gave chase while working on this fervent task to which my back is bent. I glanced up at the sky and found my thoughts could fly, beyond the words of the day. Only I turned around to find my feet still touch the ground, and reaching for a star-there having thought I have stretched too far. -Stanley E. Ostick
